

HIGH SCHOOL REFORM.

Dean A. Rose Hill Of Missouri Teachers' College Talks.

Too often, I fear, the farmer boy who is fortunate enough to get into a high school is likely to find that the subjects taught have little relation to his interests and needs, unless he has decided to abandon the farm and prepare himself for some profession like law or medicine. In fact, 4 years spent in a high school as a rule are usually arranged may wear the boy away from the farm even if at the outset he entered it with the view of increasing his intelligence and preparing himself in a general way for any sort of life work. This defect in present courses of study in the high schools can best be remedied by the introduction of courses in Home Economics and Manual Training, and by making them co-ordinate in the hands of a teacher, who in addition to general scholarship, possesses a sound knowledge of the science of agriculture, or is himself proficient in the use of tools, which courses would include the study of soils of plant growth, horticulture, climatology and like subjects. These courses, besides containing much of general scientific value, would naturally lead pupils to an interest in related subjects that are already recognized in most high schools, such as botany, chemistry and physical geography. Better general scholarship could thus be secured, while the boy would retain his interest in and sympathy with farm life. It is high time for us to put some reason and common sense into our courses of study, both in the grades and in the high school, instead of unconsciously and blindly following tradition, for some of the work now done has no other justification. Carthage Democrat

Workmen Turn Up Treasure.

Some wood cutters in the forest near Kilgannau, Germany, have turned up a treasure consisting of 826 French gold pieces of the seventeenth century. The battle took place in 1704, and the French were absolutely routed by the duke of Marlborough and Prince Eugene.

TEMPERANCE COLUMN

Conducted by the W. C. T. U.

A true story of a Joplin family I know.

Old mother Hubbard

Went to the cupboard

To get the children a crumb,

But when she got there

The cupboard was bare

For the Grocerman hadn't come.

Because old father Hubbard

Didn't care for the cupboard

As he did for the corner saloon,

For when he went there

He had money to spare

And his poor little Hubbard's had none.

But old mother Hubbard

For the sake of her cupboard

To her husband's employer she ran

For his wages she got

And she went to the shop

And paid for some groceries then.

But old father Hubbard

Very loudly he blubbered

Because his wages was gone

But he knew she was right

In this home saloon fight

As he'd better at once to "give in."

So he told the old lady

He'd acted quite badly

To her and the Hubbards at home

For the good of the nation

And his own plantation.

Of his wages the saloon would get none.
